The event is organized by the Section of Accountant Services of Dolenjska and Bela Krajina in cooperation with the Faculty of Economics and Informatics, University of Novo Mesto.

Accounting today goes beyond just monitoring and processing financial data.

The role of the modern accountant is increasingly linked to advances in technologies such as artificial intelligence and understanding the wider impact of business on the economy and society. This year's panel will focus on the key challenges and opportunities shaping the future of accounting.

Among the key topics we will explore are the use of artificial intelligence in accounting, the introduction of the minimum tax in Slovenia, developing key competencies for successful accountants and how to protect against customer defaults.

The event will bring together experts who will share their knowledge and experience in areas key to modern accountants.

You are cordially invited.
